2019 Illinois Farm Bureau Young Leader Committee Members Chosen

CHICAGO — The Illinois Farm Bureau (IFB) Young Leader Committee elected its 2019 committee members during the IFB Annual Meeting, held in Chicago, Dec. 1-4. While the committee was elected by Young Leader members, it must be confirmed by the IFB voting delegates Monday during the business session.

The committee members, which includes Chairman Kaylee Heap of Kendall County, Vice-Chair Kendall Browning of Franklin County, Secretary Mandy Eichelberger of Tazewell County, Governmental Affair and Commodities Subcommittee Chair Chad Bell of Mercer County, Education and Recruitment Subcommittee Chair Jenny Jackson of Morgan County, and Achievement Subcommittee Chair Drew DeSutter of Knox County, will assume their positions at the end of the IFB Annual Meeting.

Members of the IFB Young Leaders are 18- to 35-year-old men and women who are passionate about farming. It is a member-created, member-driven program of the IFB that allows members to promote agriculture and compete in events, including the Young Leader achievement award, excellence in agriculture award, discussion meets, quiz bowl, membership contest and county chair award.

The Illinois Farm Bureau is a member of the American Farm Bureau Federation, a national organization of farmers and ranchers. Founded in 1916, IFB is a non-profit, membership organization directed by farmers who join through their county Farm Bureau. IFB has a total membership of 394,792 and a voting membership of 78,999. IFB represents three out of four Illinois farmers.

Notice! Knox County Farm Bureau Annual Meeting

Notice is hereby given that the Annual Meeting of the voting members of the Knox County Farm Bureau will be held on Saturday, January 19, 2019 at 10:00 a.m. at Cedar Creek Hall, Galesburg, to elect directors and if approved confirm the reports of the officers for the year ending November 30, 2018; and for the transactions of such business as may properly come before the meeting.

The morning will begin with check-in at 9:30 a.m. The business meeting will begin at 10:00 a.m. followed by the guest speaker at 11:00 a.m. The Annual Knox County Farm Bureau Foundation Live Auction will be held following the business meeting at 11:30 a.m. In conclusion of the live auction, a brunch buffet will be served. The Knox County Farm Bureau Foundation Silent Auction will also be taking place throughout the morning. All proceeds from both auctions will benefit Knox County's Ag in the Classroom program.

style Christmas

I love this time of year. My infatuation with the holiday season seems fitting for a Christmas Eve baby who literally traveled home from the hospital in a Christmas stocking. I'm so in love with the Christmas season that my husband and I decorated a "wedding tree" at our late-summer reception in the farm shop: a 12-foot scotch pine under which guests placed presents – the tree itself a gift from the local Christmas

LEGISLATIVE UPDATE

Greetings, Firstly, I would like to thank you for re-electing me as your State Senator for the 47th District. It has been a true honor to serve you, and I look forward to many more years representing and protecting the interests of our communities.

I have great news to report for the district. The federal government has set aside nearly $60 million to repair the LaGrange Locks in Brown County on the Illinois River System, which is long overdue and will bring significant benefits for our producers, trade and economy.

This month, we wrapped up Fall Veto Session in Springfield, where a key public health initiative I sponsored became law. Working with Representative Norine Hammond, we passed legislation to ensure nursing home residents receive the quality patient care they deserve and their facilities receive Medicaid funding from the state at a more efficient rate. Looking ahead to the new year, Legislative Session will begin on January 7, and the new General Assembly will be sworn in on January 9. I wanted to alert you to some notable issues for the agricultural and manufacturing industries that we will want to keep an eye on. The Senate recently held a hearing on tree farm.

I have more Christmas tunes than country songs in my playlist. I own a half dozen fullsize artificial trees (and a few little ones). And I'm one of those who decorates before Thanksgiving. I figure that if I can decorate with pumpkins for six weeks or more, then the greenery deserves as much time out of the box. To back my decision, experts in the field of psychology say that decorating for Christmas early makes some people happier, spiking feel-good hormones. I'll sacrifice a solar spotlight to illuminate that message of glad tidings.

Regardless of when I pull out the ceramic light-up barns, the farm intertwines with our holiday. I'm a sucker for any Christmas decorations with farm influences, such as wrapping paper dotted with chickens wearing Santa hats and wooden trees made of reclaimed barn board. I use a rusty old hog feed pan as a table centerpiece filled with pine cones from the farm windbreak. A string of corn cob lights and a collection of tractor ornaments adorn the tree in our bedroom. Meanwhile, the old runner sled on display outside the front door reminds legislation sponsored by Chicago lawmakers (Senate Bill 3429) that aims to strongly regulate the use of antibiotics with livestock animals. Their reasoning is to prevent humans from consuming antibiotic-resistant bacteria in their meat and poultry. As I'm sure you know, the Federal Government has already imposed stricter limitations on farmers' access and use of antibiotics with livestock. In addition to Senate Bill 3249, the Senate Agricultural Committee also held a subject matter hearing on the Livestock Management Facilities Act to open up discussion for even more farming regulations. I will be closely monitoring these issues in the Senate and representing the concerns of our hard-working and overregulated farmers. I will be sure to report any movement of these measures to my local farm bureaus.

With the swearing in of the new Illinois Governor JB Pritzker, we can expect the General Assembly will soon revisit the legalization of recreational marijuana. Before any legislative action is taken on this issue, I strongly urge the Governor's Office and State Legislature to work closely with local governments, law enforcement and constituents to address the substantial concerns over implementation, law enforcement, sales and regulation—and the worries of many families in Illinois. There is no me of Grandpa's hill in the cattle pasture.

The Christmas music starts in our home after Halloween or at the end of harvest, whichever comes first. That mega farm task otherwise siphons any pleasure of celebrating the season. It yields only guilty joy to crank the holiday tunes while knowing the crops are still out there. For some evidence of that, reminisce about 2009 and cue Blue Christmas when you do. That year's dreadfully late corn harvest extended beyond Christmas for most of us in farm country.

With a thick black line through "Harvest 2018" on the done list, I stream the Christmas tunes above the relentless blare of the bin fan outside. We wrap up production records, pay the year's final bills, plan the farm holiday party and enjoy some downtime, outside of a few cattle and chicken chores.

May you celebrate a blessed Christmas season filled with joyful moments.

need to rush this process.

2019 IAA FOUNDATION SCHOLARSHIPS

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. — Agriculture students and Illinois Farm Bureau® (IFB) members and their children are encouraged to apply for 72 college scholarships offered by the IAA Foundation, Illinois Farm Bureau's charitable arm. The scholarships, ranging from $1,000 to $7,500, will be awarded in total of $110,000 for the 2019-2020 school year.

"We are pleased to help students through our growing scholarship program," said Susan Moore, director, IAA Foundation. "It is a great privilege to support the next generation of leaders, and encourage continuing education in agricultural fields."

Students may apply for a variety of scholarships, including three IAA Foundation Top Scholarships, where winners will each receive $5,000 awards. Another $7,500 award goes to the Illinois Farm Bureau Legacy of Leadership scholarship winner. In addition to family scholarships often established to honor the memory of a loved one, the IAA Foundation offers scholarships on behalf of organizations such as Prairie Farms Dairy and St. Louis District Dairy Council. All applicants must be high school seniors accepted for enrollment, or students already enrolled at an accredited college, university or community college. Scholarships are awarded for exceptional academic ability, leadership and financial need. Previous winners of an IAA Foundation scholarship are eligible to apply again.

Giving the Gift of Life Insurance

Everyone likes to give gifts. It's a pleasure to watch the warm, glowing smile of a loved one who treasures the gift they've received.

A gift that will be treasured forever is a rarity. However, there is a gift which can go a long way to fulfilling your aspirations of a gift that will last forever. Long after the candy is gone, the toys are broken, and the clothes are outgrown, this gift will continue giving and increase in value. It's the gift of life insurance.

Life insurance is an appropriate gift for two reasons. First, a child or grandchild can utilize the cash value in a whole life insurance policy to defray future education expenses or to supplement retirement benefits.

Second, making a gift of cash for the purchase of life insurance removes the gifted cash from inclusion in the gross estate of the donor for federal estate tax purposes, and provides life insurance protection for the child or grandchild in later years.

A gift of life insurance will also show the importance you place on insurance. This helps to educate the child in the area of insurance and learn to build a solid foundation for future financial programs.

Life insurance purchased on the life of a young child or grandchild is relatively inexpensive because it's based on the child's/grandchild's current health. Since the premiums are low it's possible to build a solid foundation for your child or grandchild with only one premium.

Purchasing a policy at a young age can guarantee the child insurance protection when he/she is older and starts a family. It also helps since a child's future insurance needs may dwarf your own.

You may consider setting up an irrevocable insurance trust for your child or grandchild. However, every precaution should be taken in establishing and funding an irrevocable insurance trust if the desired tax benefits are to be realized. If there is any connection between the insured and insurance policy, the IRS may try to establish that the trustee is merely an "agent" of the insured. This could cause the policy to be included in the estate of the donor. You should contact your attorney and/or accountant to learn more about establishing an insurance trust.

There are several tax advantages in choosing life insurance as a gift for a child or grandchild.

One of the tax advantages is that each year a $13,000 gift can be given gift tax-free. If your spouse participates, the maximum annual tax-free gift is $26,000. The gift is

Hailey's Manager Update

Sometimes, people say there is a "slow period" for Farm Bureau. We are definitely not experiencing that right now! For the beginning of this month, we have 14 board members, spouses, and kids traveling to Chicago for the IAA Annual Meeting. We are excited to hear this year's discussion on new policies. Some policies will be focused on more than ever before. Once I am back from Chicago, Jackie and I have the fun of preparing for our annual audit. We then move on to our December Board Meeting- one of my favorites! I get to have all my groups (Board of Directors, Young Farmers, Task Forces) and their families together at once to celebrate the holiday season. Next is on to New Orleans for the AFBF Annual Meeting where I will be representing Knox County with Board Members accepting the CAE Award for Sounds of Summer. Five days later is our 101st County Annual Meeting! We will not being having a slow period by any means, but I am excited for all our events! If I do not have the chance to see you, I hope you have a very wonderful, and safe Christmas!

November was filled with stories about turkeys and other foods served at Thanksgiving feasts. Mrs. Green took a variety of corn and products made from corn to share with each class. Students in Kindergarten through second grade around Knox County created something that included seeds from the three sisters: corn, beans and squash, a Native American agricultural crop.

Kindergarteners learned how to identify field corn from sweet corn. Students were provided with a can of sweet corn and an ear of field corn to help them understand how they are different, and the same. Everyone loves sweet corn, but in Knox County we grow a lot of field corn. Students know that Illinois is second in raising corn. They were shown pictures of corn fields and combines so they could see the ears of corn on the plant. Mrs. Green also brought an example of popcorn on the cob, and shared information about our local farmer at Pilot Knob Farms that grows red and blue popcorn. Students created corn art by decorating an ear of corn with field corn and popcorn seeds.

First grade students learned about the three sisters, and how each plant helped the other. Students learned that Native Americans told stories to share information. Students acted out the story of the three sisters. Sister corn stood tall, sister bean wrapped herself around sister corn so she could stand up, and sister squash covered the roots of the other two sisters to keep them from getting sunburned. After listening to a story about a turkey that posed for town folk to make turkey art, students were given corn, beans and squash seeds to create their own turkey art.

In second grade, students built on their understanding of the three sisters, and Mrs. Green added some Native American artifacts. Students learned that Native Americans used every part of an animal and were inventors of tools from bones, and clothing from animal skins. Students learned how each of the sisters helped the other grow by putting certain nutrients into the soil that benefitted the other plants. The Corn Ag Mag was given to each classroom which provided information about products made from corn, including sweetners, oils and ethanol. Before the end of the lesson, Mrs. Green used a piece of ecofoam (made of corn) to perform a magic trick....by making it disappear once it was submerged in water! Students were given a symbol representing the three sisters and created artwork that included each of the seeds.

Mrs. Green and Ms. Aggie will be teaching a lesson for an adopt-a-school classroom early in December. They will visit St. Symphorosa, a school near Midway Airport in Chicago. Pre-K through second grade will have a lesson on agriculture.

- CRP / CREP Prairie Grass and Tree Planting Field Maintenance.
- Township ROW clearing and chemical application.
- Pasture ground and field borders reclamation

Tyne Morgan To Headline Women In Agriculture Conference

The Women in Agriculture Conference committee is pleased to announce that Tyne Morgan will headline the 8th annual Women in Agriculture Conference in Rock Island on Thursday, March 14, 2019. Morgan was named the first female host of U.S. Farm Report in 2014. During her address, she will focus on news and policy that is shaping the agriculture industry. The keynote will be followed by a variety of breakout sessions as well as lunch.

The closing speaker will be Erin Breneman, Farmer and Farrowing Manager of Brenneman Pork. Raised in the suburbs of Chicago, it was only after Brenneman married and moved to her family' hog operation that her eyes were opened to what she calls "the beautiful world of farming." She has since become a strong advocate for the industry and for her own family's products. She will present "Sharing Your Farm Story."

Registration for the event starts on January 8th. The Conference is sponsored by the Bureau, Carroll, Fulton, Henry, Knox, Lee, Mercer, McDonough, Rock Island, Stark, Stephenson, Warren-Henderson, and Whiteside County Farm Bureaus in Illinois as well as Illinois Farm Bureau, COUNTRY Financial, River Valley Cooperative, University of Illinois Extension and Iowa State University Extension.

It's Not Too Late To Get A Flu Vaccine

This winter, when you see signs reading "Get Your Flu Vaccine," you might ask "Isn't it too late to get vaccinated?" No, it's not too late! The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) recommends that flu vaccination efforts continue throughout the flu season. While CDC recommends getting vaccinated by the end of October so that people are more likely to be protected against the flu when activity picks up in your community, vaccination into December and beyond can be beneficial during most flu seasons, including this one.

Flu season most often peaks between December and March, but activity can occur as late as May. The Health Department is encouraging people who have not yet been vaccinated this season to get vaccinated now. It takes about two weeks after vaccination for antibodies that protect against influenza virus infection to develop in the body, so it's best to get vaccinated early.

For millions of people every season, the flu means a fever, cough, sore throat, runny or stuffy nose, muscle aches, fatigue, and miserable days spent in bed. Millions of people get sick, hundreds of thousands are hospitalized, and thousands to tens of thousands of people die from flu each year.

There is a vaccine that can help reduce the risk of flu and its potentially serious complications. While the vaccine varies in how well it works, there are many studies that show that flu vaccination reduces flu illnesses, doctor visits, and missed work and school due to flu, as well as prevents flu-related hospitalizations.

CDC recommends a yearly flu vaccine for everyone 6 months of age and older as the first and most important step in protecting against seasonal flu viruses. This season, CDC recommends that providers use any licensed, age-appropriate influenza vaccine (Inactivated influenza vaccines (IIV), Recombinant influenza vaccine (RIV), or live attenuated influenza vaccine (LAIV4)) with no preference expressed for one vaccine over another.

Some people are at high risk for serious flu-related complications that can lead to hospitalization and even death. People at high risk include pregnant women, children younger than 5, but especially children younger than 2 years old, people 65 year of age and older, and people who have certain medical conditions, such as asthma, diabetes, and heart disease. Vaccinating pregnant woman helps protect them from flu illness and hospitalization, and also has been shown to help protect the baby from flu infection for several months after birth, before the baby can be vaccinated. Flu vaccination has also been associated with lower rates of some cardiac events, such as a heart attack, among people with heart disease, especially among those who had had a cardiac event in the 12 months prior to flu vaccination.

For those at high risk of serious flu complications, getting a flu vaccine is especially important. It's also important to get the vaccine if you care for anyone at high risk, including children younger than 6 months who are too young to get a flu vaccine.

Some children 6 months through 8 years of age will require two doses of flu vaccine for adequate protection from flu. Children in this age group who are getting vaccinated for the first time will need two doses of flu vaccine, spaced at least 28 days apart. Some children who have received flu vaccine previously also may need two doses. Your child's doctor or other health care professional can tell you if your child needs two doses.

So, next time you see a sign that says, "Get Your Flu Vaccine Here," stop in and get one, and encourage your friends and family to do the same.

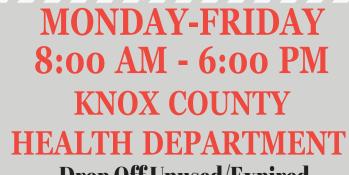

Bring your insurance card. Most insurance are accepted.

If you're without insurance, the flu vaccine will cost $30, high dose will cost $60-cash or check.

Cranberry Christmas Cake

Ingredients

3/4 cup (100 grams) whole wheat pastry flour

- 3/4 cup (100 grams) almond meal/flour 1 and 1/4 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon kosher salt
- 3/4 cup (50 grams) sliced almonds 3/4 cup (150 grams) granulated sugar
- zest of one orange 1 and 1/2 sticks (6 ounces) unsalted butter, softened
- 1/2 teaspoon pure almond extract
- 1/2 teaspoon pure vanilla extract
- 3 large eggs, room temperature, lightly whisked
- 2 tablespoons whole or low-fat milk 3/4 cup (70 grams) fresh cranberries, sliced in half

powdered sugar, for dusting (optional)

Instructions

1. Preheat the oven to 325 degrees Fahrenheit with a rack in the center position. Generously grease an 8-inch cake pan (at least 2-inches deep) with baking spray or butter and line the bottom with a round of parchment paper, grease again, and set aside.

2. In a medium bowl, whisk together the whole wheat pastry flour, almond meal, baking powder, and salt. Reserve and set aside roughly one tablespoon of sliced almonds. Break the remaining almonds with your hands and stir them into the flour mixture.

3. In a stand mixer bowl, combine the sugar and orange zest. Using your fingertips, rub the lemon zest into the granulated sugar until fragrant and moist. Add the softened butter, almond extract, and vanilla extract. Using the paddle attachment, cream the butter and sugar mixture over medium-high speed until light and fluffy, about 3 to 4 minutes. Scrape down the bowl halfway through to ensure all the ingredients are incorporated evenly. Reduce the speed to medium and slowly add the eggs. Beat until incorporated (it may look slightly broken). Over low speed, slowly add the flour mixture in two additions, alternating with the milk. The batter will be relatively thick.

4. Using a large spatula, gently fold the fresh cranberries into the cake batter. Transfer the batter into the greased cake pan and smooth the top with a small offset spatula. Top with the remaining sliced almonds.

5. Bake for 55 minutes to 60 minutes, or until a toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Allow the cake to cool in the pan on a wire rack for 10 to 15 minutes. Using a knife, run along the sides of the cake pan to release the sides of the cake and carefully invert onto a wire rack. Flip and allow the cake to cool right-side up. Serve lukewarm or at room temperature, dusted lightly with confectioner's sugar as desired.

Notes: Any leftover cake can be wrapped well in plastic wrap and kept at room temperature for 2-3 days.
