You've heard about the "resilient" farmer. The one who faces adversity head on, who knows times will sometimes be tough, who bounces back when they've been beaten down.

From Resistant to Resilient: Helping

By Adrienne DeSutter

But what about the "resistant" farmer? You know help (despite the choice words they're shouting), and they tend to be a little (or a lot) stubborn. One of my most frequently asked questions related to mental health is "how can I help someone who doesn't want to be helped?" It's certainly a challenge, but there are skills that can sometimes make tough conversations easier.

Here are some top tips to try when you're concerned about a resistant farmer:

Practice effective communication. Think about the last time someone gave you unsolicited advice, like sharing their thoughts on your eating or exercise habits. How did you respond? Did it make you want to eat better or exercise more? Or are you like me, and you'd rather continue your habits mostly out of spite for the unsolicited advice? No one wants to be told what to do, or hear about their imperfections. In fact, when someone is in the midst of heavy stress, sometimes they don't even want to hear logical solutions. Instead, try listening! You can try using and strengthen the communication skills you I-statements to help start a less threatening conversation (i.e. "I am worried about you" rather than "You should..."), and then let them lead the direction of the conversation.

Practice patience. It can be extremely hard to watch someone you love struggle, especially when you know there are resources when they're finally ready to accept it.

Remember, the only person you can control is yourself, and just because you are ready for them to change doesn't mean they are ready. And when they are ready, change takes time.

Coping with stress and mental health conditions is a process, and it's unrealistic "fine," they never need any to expect perfection overnight. Learning more about the symptoms of stress and other mental health conditions can help you better understand why your loved one acts the way they do, and can help you find patience in those sad, frustrating, and confusing moments.

> Practice what you preach. Supporting someone through stressful times can be heavy.

Supporting someone with a mental health condition can be exceptionally heavy. Just as you wish your loved one would take the initiative to care for themselves, the same expectation goes for you. Vent to a friend, call a therapist, or pull out your favorite stress management tools at the first sign that your weight seems too heavy. Not only will you get the relief you need, but you'll also be setting an example for your loved one that it's ok to need help, and it's ok to take time to care for yourself. Sometimes doing hard things becomes a little easier when you're doing them together. And bonus: a therapist can also help you set important personal boundaries need to get through to your resistant farmer!

It takes a lot of hard work to help a farmer go from resistant to resilient. Practicing these skills with intention and diligence can help you become the best support system for your farmer, and the one they know they can turn to for help the one! They're always

Planting the unofficial start to the new year Spring upstages January in delivering a fresh start, a contagious feeling when flowers bloom, morel mushrooms pop and calves frolic through greening pastures. Warming temperatures recharge motivations to grill out, eat healthier and take walks. We again experience the satisfying exhaustion of days spent in fresh air and sunshine.

I welcome this season when my family acts on our resolution to grow better crops in better ways, making this month a more ideal start to the New Year than January 1. In fact, I'll stay up past midnight more in this single spring planting season than the last several New Year's Eves combined.

Since harvest, our farm has serviced the planters and tractors, stocked seed, prepared the planter maps and loaded seeding prescriptions in the monitors. We studied last year's harvest data, planned new test plots, researched soil-improving microbials and prepped the planters to give millions of seeds equal opportunity to produce a better crop than the last.

Thousands of farm families like ours across Illinois will work in windows of favorable weather and ground conditions to plant corn, soybeans and other crops that cover about 75% of the state's land mass. Planting season re-energizes the state's quiet landscape, painting this blank canvas with seeds to grow golden tassels and bushy soybean plants. In our gardens, seeds promise feathery carrot tops and scratchy squash vines. Our daughter aims for sky-reaching sunflower blossoms for an FFA and 4-H project.

Technology has introduced the art of satellite-guided rows and picket-fence stands. The tractor drives itself hands-free, allowing corn to sprout in straight rows at precise spacing like posts on a yard fence. Ideally, the plants emerge at the same time, courtesy of ground pressure sensors that help sow seed at consistent depths. The planter operates via satellite guidance in the absence of a row marker, the steel "arm" that once reached out to etch a line in the soil for the tractor to follow the next pass.

In many ways, the process of planting represents an act of faith and a belief in tomorrow. When the weather threatens or field conditions seem too ideal to stop, we may experience today and tomorrow in the same work session.

Getting To Know Your Farm Bureau Policy 122. TRANSPORTATION - postings at public road crossings on railroads genery conditions

RAILWAYS

Finance

We support: 1. Strengthening of existing state laws so the Illinois Commerce Commission (ICC) can deal effectively with unfair rent increases imposed by railroads upon their tenants, and unrealistic sale prices for land offered by the railroads to tenants or other prospective buyers of railroad property.

2. Legislation requiring full disclosure of the railroad grain transportation bidding process to the individuals who participate in the process after all bids have been made and rail cars have been allocated.

We oppose diversion of railroad earnings to holding companies or non-railroad businesses at the expense of maintaining a viable railroad.

Infrastructure

We support: 1. Efforts to have more at-grade highway/railroad crossings signalized with warning lights and gates.

A. Where closure of the crossing would impose undue hardships on users of the road, greater flexibility should be shown by the ICC on safety considerations.

B. Efforts should be made to ensure that the ICC considers accident history and emergency access along with other locally important issues in decisions on petitions to close railroad crossings.

2. Protocols that maintain public safety by requiring railroads to give a minimum of two weeks advance notice of construction intentions to local residents and local government bodies prior to taking formal action on permit applications and prior to temporary railroad crossing closures.

We oppose parallel branch line mergers of rail systems and the granting of railroad abandonments which tend to lessen overall transportation competition or where there is or could be proven traffic potential.

which are abandoned.

2. A requirement that a notice of proposed crossing closure be posted at crossings 30 days in advance of a hearing to consider closure of the crossing.

3. The prompt communication, assessment of damages, cleanup and processing of claims incurred by both private landowners and units of local government following a train derailment.

4. Oversight by the ICC of median barriers and crossing safety devices placed in the approach to grade crossings which prohibit and/or hinder the flow of agricultural equipment through grade crossings.

5. Legislation that will allow the Surface Transportation Board, on petition of a state, to declare all or part of a state to be an area of inadequate rail competition, with special rail customer remedies that would apply in such areas.

Other

We support:

1. Giving authority to the state to force a railroad to temporarily cease operations on a given stretch of track due to emergency conditions.

2. Maintaining state oversight of railroads under the purview of the ICC.

3. Working with the railroad industry and the ICC to establish regulations that require parked trains to maintain a 500-foot distance from ungated and/or unsignaled at-grade crossings in unincorporated areas to provide safe visibility for motorists. Trains parked at businesses should be exempt from this requirement when it is necessary while loading or unloading, but still maintain the maximum setback distance possible.

4. Meeting with railroad officials to determine ways to improve rail service to agriculture across Illinois.

5. Encouraging rail passenger services to maintain or improve service and increase efforts to become self-sufficient.

We oppose the implementation of high speed rail projects unless the following conditions are included:

1. Safe and convenient public access is provided across the railroad.

2. Owners of private crossings are provided continued access.

3. Landowners are fairly compensated for any takings associated with the project.

We reserve the right to reject any or all news material or advertisements offered to this paper. PLEASE REPORT ANY CHANGES IN YOUR ADDRESS TO OUR OFFICE

Thank You KNOX COUNTY FARM BUREAU

Land Use We support legislation and regulations to provide that in the case of a railroad abandonment, the current owner of the tract of land from which the railroad right-of-way was obtained be given the right of first refusal for such land, including mineral rights, based upon the fair market value for comparable property rights in the area. If the current owner fails to exercise such option, the adjacent landowners will be offered the next right of refusal.

NEWS FROM COUNTRY FINANCIAL COUNTRY 3 Types of Auto Coverage Explained

Chances are, if you own a car, and you're a law-abiding citizen, you have auto insurance. And although auto insurance is one of the most common types of insurance out there, there are a lot of confusing terms that go along with it.

But don't let insurance mumbo-jumbo get you overwhelmed. Here are the most common types of auto insurance coverages -

Liability coverage: Protects you if you cause damage to others and/or their stuff.

Liability can help cover another person's medical bills or costs to repair their vehicle and property damaged from the accident. Most states have legal minimums to how much liability coverage you must have. It's often a good idea to carry more than what's required, to decrease your chance of high out-of-pocket costs later.

Collision coverage: Covers your car if you hit another car, person, or non-moving object.

Collision coverage helps cover costs to repair your vehicle regardless of fault. Collision does not cover if you hit an animal or if your car breaks down because it's really old and untrustworthy.

Comprehensive coverage: Protects your car from things other than liability and collision, like theft, vandalism, fire, severe weather, or hitting a deer.

Comprehensive coverage is typically sold alongside collision coverage. Think of them as peanut butter and chocolate. Ok on their own. But together, magic.

Sometimes, when you have more questions than answers on confusing insurance terms, it might seem easier to do nothing at all. So, whether you're protecting the things you love or preparing for tomorrow, don't get overwhelmed, get started. For more information visit www.countryfinancialcom.

Mental Health Tips for Kids in Stressful Times

However, we tend to think that children are carefree - they have easier lives than us. As we tell them how hard growing up will be in the real world, we misjudge the reality that kids live and sharing stories every single day. In the long in their own "real world" every day. Thus, adults must acknowledge that they do face stress in their day-to-day activities.

Stressors in kids' lives can include difficult family members, difficult teachers, or overly busy schedules due to schoolwork and extracurricular activities that leave no room for relaxation. Currently, children are under stress due to a variety of added reasons. During their critical years of cognitive development, they are glued to the television, computers, and mobile phones, whether for entertainment, online classes, or family.

Parents always provide physical needs such as healthy food, warm clothes in the winter, and a reasonable sleep schedule. But a child's mental and emotional needs are often overlooked.

Healthy child development is dependent upon good mental health. It helps children develop skills in social interaction, emotional control, behavior, thinking, and communication. Taking care of their mental health now builds a solid foundation for happiness and wellbeing later in life.

Here are some tips to help your children: Talk to Them about their feelings and thoughts about what is going on around them. Let your child know that it is perfectly okay to feel different types of emotions. Take time to listen, be calm, and do not be afraid to get down of treatment. For more information call the on their level if the child is small.

Enjoy the Moment of being with your child

Stress has been part of every one of our lives. uninterrupted during the day. This can positively affect their mental health, but this is increasingly difficult in an age of constant distraction. Children benefit from looking, smiling, talking, run, taking the phone off the table and really interacting with your child in uninterrupted play will teach them how to play, feel valued, and get along with others.

Recognize Efforts. A parent's recognition of a child's effort, acknowledgment of their success, and encouragement when they struggle will boost their self-esteem. Praise in and of itself is not bad, but acknowledging effort and progress allows children to develop pride in their achievements.

Encourage their Interests. Take time to learn about their lives and the thing they value. They get to appreciate who they are, and you will be able to identify and support them easier.

As parents, our primary responsibility is to protect our children from abuse and bullying. While stress is a normal part of life, preparing your child for the future by learning how to deal with it now will set them up for success. They will certainly disagree with friends and fail assignments at some point. Thus, as a parent, it is your responsibility to empower your kids with the needed skills to cope with these circumstances.

Many children with mental health problems do not receive adequate support. Take steps to make sure your child has a healthy mental state. Early intervention can be crucial to the success Knox Community Health Center at 309-344-2225.

May 2022 Recipe of the Month

Strawberries and Cream Bars

Ingredients

For the crust: 17.5 oz pouch Betty Crocker sugar cookie

mix

1/2 cup butter, softened 1 large egg

For the filling:

1 cup white chocolate chips 8 oz package cream cheese, softened

For the topping: 3 cups sliced fresh strawberries

- 1/2 cup granulated sugar
- 2 Tablespoons cornstarch
- 1/3 cup water
- Instructions
- For the crust:

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Spray the bottom of a 9x13-inch baking pan with nonstick spray. In a large bowl, mix the cookie mix, butter, and egg until a dough forms.

Press dough into the bottom of the baking pan. Bake for 15-20 minutes or until light golden brown. Remove from oven and let cool completely.

For the filling:

In a medium bowl, beat cream cheese with an electric mixer until smooth. In a small, microwave-safe bowl, microwave white chocolate chips for 45-60 seconds or until chips are melted. Stir until smooth. Stir in the melted white chocolate chips with the cream cheese. Spread this mixture evenly over the cooled sugar cookie crust. Refrigerate while making the topping

For the topping:

In a small bowl, crush 1 cup of the strawberries. In a 2-quart saucepan, add the crushed strawberries, sugar, cornstarch, and water. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture boils and thickens. Remove from heat and let cool 10 minutes. Gently fold in remaining strawberries. Spoon over the filling. Cover and refrigerate 1 hour or until set.
